So Mrs. Heckman Decided To Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Note Results—

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—"I had pains in my back and sides and headaches, so that I could not do my work. Once in a while I would be sick a week. A friend told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had kept her out of the hospital, so I thought I would try it, as I had tried a number of other medicines. Now I feel like a different person and am telling my friends about the Vegetable Compound helping me, hoping they will let it help them, too."—Mrs. ETHEL HECKMAN, Box 21, R.F.D. No. 1, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Saved From An Operation

The worst pain I had was in my right side and back with swelling in my side so that I was unable to walk at one time. I was ordered to go to the hospital but here I am, still without an operation. I saw your advertisement and have taken the Vegetable Compound with splendid results. I recommend it freely and will answer any letters from women asking about my case."—Mrs. J. The new books, "Songs of Work and Worship," by Mrs. Stella Cushing, have been placed in the library. I would occasionally say to myself after some wonderfully yarn had been spun, "Well, this is the last of it! Nobody can ever beat it for originality." But it never was! It is a work of two another fellow would turn up with a tale that was so fresh and deep and as to put the other in the primary class. I quit believing."

It is something of a credit to the poor dear convict, and outside of the Prison Reform Association many amateurs devote themselves to the task of softening the drab lives within walls. With this no special fault can be found in view of the perspective. But is the perspective correct? Reform and punishment cannot go together. Resentment for the latter day is to protect itself. The present prison system does not do it. Indeed, it aggravates the peril. What, then, shall be done to amend conditions so obviously unsatisfactory?

The answer is that the crime should be considered inhuman and a certain stage and be dealt with accordingly. "To begin with, the intricacies of the law should be exchanged for simplicity. In this line I would replace the jumble of the code with one constructed upon the following lines for the protection of lives, persons and property:

1—Murder. At least capital punishment and substitute imprisonment for life.

2—Manslaughter. Term of 20 years in prison where only this type of convict shall serve his time.

3—Burglary or highway robbery when accompanied by violence. Life sentences; otherwise, indeterminate sentences for 5 to 20 years.

4—Larceny and forgery. Indeterminate sentences of not less than five or more than 20 years.

5—Assault. Indeterminate sentences of from five to 20 years.

But this is not all. Men who pass the age of 30 and commit any offenses below capital, should be incarcerated for life.

Any second offender should share the same fate. Society should say: We will guard ourselves. The individual can save himself from prison by refraining from criminal acts. Starting for the penitentiary is a voluntary act on the part of the traveler. He takes himself to duress and should know that when the door slams behind him it will never open again. This may not end crime, but it will curtail the number of criminals, both of large and potential.

In putting this code into practice I should reform the prisons. I should make them non-punitive. The cells should not be 9x13x5 ft. They should have at least the area of a decent hall bedroom, with a single occupant. He should be given books and newspapers, have all the liberty he likes to write and receive letters.

Visiting privileges should be liberalized. He should be well employed on road work or industries that will interest and content him, with some compensation that should go to his family beyond that needed to reimburse the State for lodging and guarding him. Beyond this society will have charged him off never more to be in fear of him. Some will say the criminal will be better off than honest folks.

What of it? They will have a better chance, and he is through!—Brooklyn Eagle.

Compressing Crime

By Don C. Setz

"Give me no justice," said Mr. Dooley, in voicing the sentiment of the average American citizen. "Leave it to them that want it." This doctrine, together with an adventurous habit of taking chances, is responsible for the failure of existing codes and courts to deal successfully with crime. These aim to punish and reform at the same time, with the result that they do neither. Few men come out of prison penitent or morally improved. It is a human tendency to go down instead of up. It requires the urgings of a myriad of preachers to keep most of us from backsliding. On the other hand, moral domination by law, whether applied to individual conduct or summary matters like drink and drugs, is equally ineffectual as a means of reform. The "reformers" do not reform, but are in the main nests of vipers. No penologist was ever enough of a physician to plumb the depths of the criminal mind. I know an old warden who said that every one of his boarders was a wronged and innocent person—to hear him tell it. "When I first took charge of this place," he commented, "I was deeply moved by their tales until I found that not one of them was true. I suppose rumormongering in lonely cells set them to thinking with uncanny ingenuity. They were marvellous of plausibility. I would occasionally say to myself after some wonderfully yarn had been spun, 'Well, this is the last of it! Nobody can ever beat it for originality

Develop Oxford County

The State of Maine is entering upon an era of wonderful progress and development. All the signs of the times point to the awakening of a spirit of enthusiasm and co-operation among the people in all sections of Maine which is bound to bring results.

Oxford County will share in this advance, but the extent that it shares will depend upon the efforts of each individual citizen as in all other sections of the state.

Oxford County has possibilities for development as great if not greater than any other section. The wonderful hills, mountains and lakes add a beauty and charm to the whole region which no more level sections do not possess. No section is any more favorably situated for fruit growing. There is an abundance of timberlands and water power. The mineral resources are likely to become of great importance in the future development of the County.

Every little town in Oxford County has its possibilities for growth and development along one line or another. The farmers and villagers should unite their efforts as never before in making their community a growing community, a better community. Home markets are the best markets. A thrifty farming district and a growing village help make up the ideal New England town.

Organize a Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade or Development Club in every town and plantation in Oxford County. Let the little town of Mason away up in the mountains back of Bethel, be the first to set the good example. No community is too small for work along this line. There is always an opportunity to make improvements in even the smallest hamlets. Neat and attractive signs at the town line, guide boards and other information for the stranger all help to give a good impression of the community.

Let the citizens of every town get together and talk things over to bring out the best ideas of the townpeople. Resolve to let the world know your town is on the map. Then form your organization and get a live wire for President and another live wire for Secretary. Do not make the mistake of excluding the women from membership. If the Portland Chamber of Commerce cannot get along without women, surely no town organization should attempt to do so.

Do not make the mistake of attempting to accomplish great things for the community in a very short time. Do the things nearest at hand, attend to the small improvements first and other and larger accomplishments will come about as a natural development.

Things are already beginning to happen in Oxford County, a big brick clothes-pin factory and electric lights at Bryant Pond, a Peledepar crumpling mill and electric lights at West Paris. These are only a few of the signs pointing to a greater growth and development than ever before known in this part of Maine.

Let every town in the County have its organization to boom the town and unite their strength in the Oxford Chamber of Commerce for pushing forward projects and taking united action on what concerns the County as a whole. The possibilities of what united action can accomplish are unlimited. California and Florida have shown to the world what it will do. Maine and Oxford County are going to do the same.

ALBANY

Hunt's Corner and Vicinity

At eleven o'clock Sunday at the Albany Congregational church there was held a service for the reception of new members which was followed by the Holy Communion. The service was well furnished with special music and Mrs. Ives preached on the "Love of the Cross." She gave an account of Jesus' life, of his death and of his resurrection to cast out sin, to exalt little children as the gateway to the Kingdom of Heaven. "So Jesus came forth to reveal His will and His love for mankind, but evil men would have none of Him and crucified Him between two thieves. But such love as Jesus showed on the Cross! He prayed for the men who had crucified Him. He knew how miserable their lives were, so bitter and full of hatred. He thought of them and prayed that God might forgive them and cleanse them from their sins. He tenderly asked John, the Beloved Disciple, to care for His mother, and so taught His disciples for all ages to protect and cherish their mothers. He promised life to the penitent thief on the Cross. This promise must be a shock to those people in Maine who consider all prisoners in Thomaston worthy of severe punishment. To the penitent prisoner today, through sin and may believe, would offer His redeeming love and at last paradise with him. Hard hearts, however, cannot glimpse such forgiveness. They are too absorbed with their own selfish selves to want a savior to be saved or to work to save one. Jesus conquered suffering by forgiveness. He conquered death by love. The light of the resurrection is the hope and comfort of millions of his disciples today. The new members of the church are Gard Philip Barker, Philip Arthur Becker, Mrs. Mabel Nellie Becker and Arthur Eugene Churchill. The Holy Communion service then followed.

The Fryeburg Village Corporation meeting will be held at the Fire House, Saturday evening. The voters are also asked to take action to install three new street lights on Bridge Street, on the street leading to the John Burke place, so called, and on Post Lane.

Another matter which will receive its annual airing is also as to what shall be done about the town dump, which has assumed such proportions that it disfigures a large section of ground between the village and Lovell's Pond. ## FRYEBURG ACADEMY GYMNASIUM

Fine New Building Will Be Dedicated at Graduation Time in June

The new gymnasium building at Fryeburg Academy will be dedicated at some hour especially set apart for that purpose during graduation week in June.

The building is the result of a vote for construction by the trustees of the institution last August. Work was commenced on the site in September and the first shovelful of concrete was put into the forms last October with appropriate ceremony.

The building is of wood, 30x40 feet area, on the concrete foundation, the inside being finished into the roof, giving a clear height of 22 feet. The gymnasium floor is unbroken by stairs or passages, entrance to the locker rooms in the basement being by stairs in the porch.

Work was continued through the winter, and, though not complete in all details, the building has been in use several months. (The first use was for training the baseball teams.)

The cost has been approximately $12,000. Elroy O. LaCase, Principal of the Academy, has been very active and efficient in securing financial support among the alumni and friends of the Academy, and it is due to their generosity that so admirable a building has been made possible.

The cut and brief description of the new gymnasium are from the School and College Department of the Boston Evening Transcript. That paper also gives an account of the annual reunion of Boston Association of Fryeburg Academy Alumni, held at Hotel Kemmore on the night of May 1. Hon. W. W. Towle, president of the board of trustees of the Academy, presided at the table. Other trustees were Hon. A. P. Perry of Somerville, and Colonel John S. Barrows of Boston.

Memorial tributes were presented for the late Walter A. Robinson of Arlington, for a number of years president of the Association, and for Greenville Austin, a member of the Association, both of whom have died since the last reunion.

Remarks reminiscent of connections with the Academy, and expressing hopes and plans for the future were made by the trustees present, by George Strodt, Dr. Hayward, Walter Powers, Dr. Chandler, H. James, J. W. Smart, W. Billings and the Misses Anna Barrows and Hattie Pike.

Principal LaCase also spoke and a number of pupils of the Academy assisted in presenting the entertainment. The committee for the event comprised John W. Smart, Mrs. M. G. Billings, Mrs. C. C. Smith, Mrs. C. M. Wyman and Miss Mary Barrows, secretary.

NORTH NORWAY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Swan and two children from the village spent Sunday with Mrs. Swan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Morse.

Callers at E. A. Cox's, Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cox of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cummings of Hebron and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Swan from Lakeside, N. H.

Mrs. Mary Cleveland from the village is caring for Mrs. E. A. Cox.

The pie supper and social at the Swift's Corner school, Saturday evening, was largely attended, people coming from as far away as Hebron and several parties from the village. A fine time is reported. The proceeds amounted to $13.80.

Harold Jones carried his uncle, Dr. I. P. Symonds, to North Brighton, April 28, to attend a sick horse.

Bryer-Hobbs

A wedding which occurred recently and which will be of interest to Norway people, took place in Middleton, Mass., April 17, when Miss Minnie Bryer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bryer, became the bride of Charles W. Hobbs of 9 Lyndale St., Lynn, Mass.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Grimes, pastor of the Baptist church of Danvers.

The Bryer wedding was beautifully decorated with ferns and cut flowers.

Attending the bride was Miss Rena Jeffers and Rodney Osgood served as best man.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of white satin with a veil of tulle caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweet peas. Her attendant wore pale green tulle and gold lace and carried pink roses. The wedding march and the musical program were presented by Miss Mildred Eastman. There was a large gathering of guests attending the reception.

The guest book and gift room were in charge of Miss Helen Webber.

The bride was supervisor of the outpatient department of the Lynn Hospital.

Mr. Hobbs is the son of Adna Hobbs and Minnie Merrill Hobbs formerly of Norway and Watford. He is now in business at 27-19 Lyndale St., Lynn, and is a member of Mount Carmel Lodge of Masons.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs had previously planned a wedding trip to Norway to visit Mr. Hobbs' aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cox, but had told their friends whom they suspected of playing pranks on them, that they might do what they would with them, but be sure not to "disable their auto for they must have it to meet the 9.30 P. M. train to New York, where they intended going on their wedding trip. After the reception by using a little strategy the bride and groom, and their friends escaped through an alley way, going directly to Lynn where they spent the night unmolested in their own furnished apartment at 9 Lyndale St.

Next morning they left for Norway by auto. The snow storm which came the next day after their arrival seriously hampered the travel and the novelty of tramping, riding and snowshoeing through fifteen inches of snow made up for the loss of other anticipated pleasures. The only thing which happened to mar their trip was a hold-up for speeding at York Beach. A corp arrested them near the middle of the beach, but on finding they were newly weds he let them pass with the advice to use a little less juice.

Get the Big Yield!

From the first day those tender corn plants push through the soil into sight, you look anxiously down the corn row and picture in your mind's eye the harvest beyond. What that harvest will be depends much on your cultivator and how you use it. Do you like to use it? Is it easily controlled?

McCormick-Deering Cultivators

Long ago our McCormick-Deering cultivators went through the experimental stage. As worth-while improvements were discovered they were adopted. Today—wherever you go, you hear them praised for their good work; their easy operation; their convenient adjustments; and the comfort they provide the user.

You should go to the store of the McCormick-Deering dealer and look them over. Samples are set up there for you. Climb into the seats, shift the pedals, handle the levers. Then let the dealer quote you the low prices. You will quickly agree that these popular cultivators give real value for the money, and these are days when real value counts big.

Warning Signs

We are glad to learn that Road Commissioner Hilton has placed sign boards, one near the corn shop and the other near Herbert Walker's warning the autoists to go slow.

This is the most dangerous place between Norway and Bridgton. Four roads come together at the foot of the hill near Haskell's mill and one cannot see an auto till it is right upon them and very few drivers blow their horn to warn of their approach. A few rods from this place in the schoolhouse filled with little children, who have to come and go by these roads to their homes and whose lives are endangered every day by reckless driving.

It is not those who are touring the country in big cars enjoying the beautiful scenery, who are so careless but the boys who can get an old Ford car and stop on her to see how fast she can go. Had this warning before some precious life is lost.
